I find deep satisfaction in the transformative mission that we undertake to help young men overcome their addictions to sex, drugs, and alcohol so that they become disciples of Jesus Christ. The aspect of my work that I particularly appreciate is the helping relationship that I establish with these students. Guided by a sincere commitment, I try to advise, encourage, and support these young people, helping them to abandon their dependencies. The spiritual dimension of my approach also takes shape through prayer and evangelization, offering holistic support for their transformation. This experience of helping relationships within HTC constantly reminds me of the power of compassion and hope in individuals searching for redemption.
